Do you or someone you know have Alzheimer’s Disease?

The Memory and Aging Project established at Washington University in 1979 seeks older adult volunteers to participate in a study on memory and thinking.

Qualifications Include:

- 65 years or older
- General history of good health
- Mild memory loss for one year or longer
- Able to participate in 2-3 visits on an annual basis
- Family member or close friend to serve as co-participant

There is no cost to participate. Volunteers receive a thorough assessment of memory and thinking each year by an experienced clinician. Participants are notified of research and treatment studies for which they may be eligible. This research does not interfere or substitute for your regular doctor’s visits. Director: John C. Morris, MD
